D, Baker, of Oregon: Delivered in the Senate of the United States, January 2d, and 1861, Upon the Secession Question Union, and not a compact between sovereign States: that according to its true theory, it has the inherent capacity of self-protection; that its Constitution is a perpetuity, benecent, unfailing, grand; and that its powers are equally capable of exercise against the domestic treason and against foreign foes. Such, sir, is the main purpose of my speech; and what I may say additional to this, will be drawn from me in reply to the speech to which I propose now to address in sell. iSir, the argument of the honorable Senator from Louisiana is addressed iirst-3 tvill not say rna1nlyto establish the proposition that the State of South Carolina, having, as he says, seceded, has seceded from this Union rightfully; and, sir, just here he says one thing, at least, vrhieh rneets my hearty approval and acquiescence, He says he does not tleetn itsnch is the substance of the rernark-unwise or improper to argue the right of the case even now and here. in this I agree with him most heartily. Right and duty are always majestic ideas. They march an invissible guard in the van of all true progress; they animate theloftiest spirit in the public assemblies; they nerve the arm of the warrior 3 they kindle the soul of the statesman, and theirnagination of the poet; they sweeten every reward, they console every defeat. Sir, they are of themselves an indissoluhle chain, which binds feeble, crring humanity to the eternal throne of God. I meet the discussion in that...
