Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from First Annual Report of the Department of Public Health: July 1, 1917 to June 30, 1918 The State Department of Public Health, created by the Civil Administrative Code, came into being at a time when the Nation and State were beginning to adapt themselves to the new and complex problems of a Nation at war. These problems were encountered very early in the history of the department and were so urgent in character that they had to be met, often at the sacrifice of certain definite features of the program which had been mapped out for execution in times of peace. Practically every division of the department has felt and responded to this wartime demand. The Executive Division has participated in the creation of the medical machinery for the enlistment of the National Army; the Director has responded to calls for service in a large number of conferences of National scope looking toward the sanitary and health control about military cantonments, the conservation and development of State health organizations and similar wartime problems. The Division...
