Reviews

Great electronic book and useful one. It can be written in straightforward terms rather than difficult to understand. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.

Excerpt: . . . 11 Whereas the USEPA had earlier projected that the Byron Salvage Yard, a Super-fund site in Illinois, would reach the construction complete phase in fiscal year 2002, they are now projecting that it will not be until fiscal year 2003. That means only two sites will have reached the construction complete phase this fiscal year in Illinois, and one of those sites was carried over from last year. In addition, only one site, A and F Materials Reclaiming, is projected to be deleted from the list this year-meaning it is the only site in Illinois that will be totally cleaned up. The EPA's Inspector General also reveals that the Jennison Wright Corporation site in Granite City, Illinois is not being cleaned up, even though it is not one of the megasites that EPA claims take longer to complete. Although the officials at the EPA requested 12.5 million for clean-up of the Jennison Wright Corporation site in Granite City, Illinois, this year, only 570,000 has been allocated, meaning that the work has been put off. This Fund-lead Superfund site has ground-water, surface soil, and subsurface soil contamination, including arsenic, benzene, manganese, naphthalene, beryllium, chromium, and other contaminants. Surface waters are contaminated with creosote, pentachlorophenol, and other related compounds. The Jennison-Wright Corporation site is a 20-acre, bankrupt railroad tie-treating facility in Granite City, which has a population of 33,000. The site is located in a low income, mixed industrial residential neighborhood. Operations as a railroad...
