This book may be worth purchasing. It typically fails to expense excessive. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.

The different interests and localities represented; the various opinions held and views advocated, made the end sought one of extreme delicacy and difficulty, and it is thought that such a record as is here given is but just to all concerned. Nothing of any significance or importance is omitted from the record of the regular minutes of each session. It has been the problem of more than one state to find a solution that would unify our educational interests. The multiplicity of schools and colleges has divided our strength, and the only relief in older states has been that which time has brought, by the survival of a few stronger institutions and the final extinction of weaker ones. The ideal University is barely reached by those corporations, richly endowed and of unlimited patronage, and if we would meet the reasonable demands of higher education, even to a limited degree, we must unify our interests and concentrate our efforts to that end. We trust that in this great new West the plan we have adopted thus early, though it require time to consummate these ends, will save us the expense and experience of fostering institutions to be killed off, and that those we...
